

An open letter from education workers to the Welsh Government

Dear Education Minister, Kirsty Williams MS,

We write as workers and experts in the field of education to ask you to drop the enforcement of English from the Curriculum Bill. We disagree with the proposal to make English a compulsory element of the curriculum on the face of the legislation, and to require governing bodies to 'opt out' one by one of making English compulsory before the age of 7 in their school.

The Donaldson report, which was accepted in full by the Government, did not recommend making English a compulsory element of the curriculum, only Welsh. The Government has not offered any educational evidence or justification for making English compulsory, and not a single expert or stakeholder recommended this during the consultation period¹. That is quite different from the rest of the Curriculum for Wales, which is based on the evidence of experts and educators. Welsh education bodies including Mudiad Meithrin and Rhieni dros Addysg Gymraeg have raised concerns about the proposal to make English compulsory and we have not seen a satisfactory response from the Government to their concerns.

In practice, there is no need for legislative enforcement to ensure that pupils are fluent in English. English is bound to be taught in our schools, and that is ensured through the Languages, Literacy and Communication Area of Learning and Experience, without the need for a specific legislative proposal. In the current linguistic context, children in Wales will acquire English as it is such a powerful and ubiquitous language in the lives of everyone in the country. We share your aim of ensuring that all children in Wales become fluent in Welsh and English. However, it is clear that it is Welsh, and specifically Welsh-medium education, that needs legislative support, not English.

Making English compulsory on the face of the legislation would have a negative impact on the ethos and practice of schools and other educational contexts where it is already a struggle to make Welsh the norm as a medium of learning and communication. Keeping English in the act as a general requirement but making an exception for the 'Welsh-medium sector' is not sufficient. Given the desire for schools to move up the linguistic continuum, it is not an exception for some schools that we need, but to remove English entirely from the legislation.

The proposal of 'opting in' to the immersion phase by individual schools demonstrates a lack of understanding of immersion methods, which are so vital to the success of Welsh-medium education, and endangers the use of those methods across the country. It means that it will be possible to change the language medium of a school at the whim of a governing body. It will therefore hinder any strategic planning by local authorities and the Government to grow Welsh-medium education and implement the Welsh in Education Strategic Plans.

A system in which Welsh-medium schools must apply for an exemption to introducing English before the age of 7, but English-medium schools don't have to do anything, would establish the idea that Welsh-medium education is somehow marginal, unusual or abnormal and that English-medium education is the normative medium of education in Wales. It would be a clear example of treating Welsh-medium schools less favourably than English-medium schools.

We fully support the Government's target of a million speakers and to ensure that 70% of Welsh children leave school fluent in Welsh by 2050. We therefore want the education sector, Government and local authorities to work together in order to implement a single continuum for teaching Welsh and grow and normalise Welsh-medium education across the country. We are concerned that the proposals in the Bill will prevent this from happening.

The history of Welsh-medium education is a history of having to fight for its recognition and development. But it is also a history of people innovating and working together in order to maintain this unique legacy for generations of children. We do not want to see the Curriculum Bill turning the clock back and leading to further battles over Welsh-medium education at the level of schools and communities.

Thousands of people speak Welsh today because of the success of Welsh-medium education. We know from our work in the field what works to develop the linguistic skills of children from all backgrounds, and how to create more Welsh speakers to help reach the million. We urge you to listen to the experts — those who work every day to provide and develop Welsh-medium education for all children in Wales.

Welsh-medium education is not an exception to the norm, but is rather something that we should celebrate, embrace and help to grow. We ask you to listen and ensure that the Curriculum Bill reflects that.

Yours sincerely,
